Art History 405: Summer Seminar Abroad
BEIJING AS PALIMPSEST
August 28–September 12, 2017
Led by Professors Jun Hu and Rob Linrothe, Department of Art History

Applications Now Being Accepted
Graduate students completing their first year of study in Art History in Spring 2017 are automatically enrolled in the seminar. First-year graduate students from other humanities programs and the School of Communication may apply for two additional spaces in the seminar. Interested students should apply by submitting a short application essay (ca. 500 words) explaining how their own course of study and research would benefit from the Beijing seminar. Please send it to Prof. Jun Hu (jun.hu@northwestern.edu) with a cover email identifying the applicant’s department, area of interest, advisor and dissertation topic (if known) and complete contact information. The application should also include an endorsement from the applicant’s department chair expressing willingness to commit $750 toward the seminar costs (the other expenses, including flights, transportation within China, lodging, and visa-application will be covered by the Department of Art History). Applications must be received by April 17.
