The course will be a two-fold venture: an interdisciplinary study of prints of all kinds including posters made in later nineteenth-century Paris, and the preparation of an exhibition (curated entirely by the students in the class) of posters by Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec at the Block Museum, opening in January 2015. The class will be geared to art history majors and other qualified undergraduate students.